OVERVIEW

Since 2008, the University of Udine (Italy) organizes the Summer School on 'Consumer's Rights and Market Regulation in the European Union', in cooperation with a consortium of European universities, now including De Montfort University (UK), the University of Essex (UK), the University of West Timisoara (Romania), the University of East Anglia (UK), the University of Belgrade (Serbia) and the University of Rijeka (Croatia).

For many years, the EU Commission co-financed the summer school within the Lifelong Learning Programme, so that more than 300 students and 30 lecturers from all over Europe (including from previous partners: University of Copenhagen, Riga Graduate School of Law, Radboud University-Nijmegen, Comillas Pontifical University of Madrid, European Law Faculty of Nova Gorica) participated in our summer school.

The English taught summer school focuses on some of the most relevant aspects related to consumer protection and market regulation in the European Union Law, such as:

- General consumer protection law - the EU Directive on Consumer Rights;
- B2C contracts, unfair terms in B2C contracts and unfair commercial practices
- Specific contracts; such as consumer sales, consumer credit;
- On-line auctions;
- Financial services and protection of private investors;
- Consumer protection in international relationships: applicable law, jurisdiction, trans-border enforcement.

Lectures methodology will be characterized by a case by case approach (short presentations followed by case-law analyses and debate) and will develop a concrete model of cooperation among the involved teachers and students, balancing formal lectures and high interactive activities, such as simulated cases discussions, problem-based learning on the most relevant case-studies and plenary discussions.

The aim is to explain the state-of-the-art in the field of interest, possible future developments and potential issues. At the end of each lecture, students will have to identify solutions and to suggest suitable legal basis.

The participation of students, professors and researchers coming from different countries will assure a multi-perspective and suitable approach.

Our goals:

- To offer a quality and intensive training in consumer law, focusing on transnational developments at the EU level;
- To promote the sharing of knowledge, experiences and practices between participants from different countries and to encourage comparison between legislative solutions;
- To provide students with a solid and high-quality knowledge on course's topic and help them in developing incisive reasoning skills and other soft skills such as team working, problem solving and argumentative reasoning;
- To consolidate an international network of expertise in consumer law.

After completing the Summer School, students will have a good command of EU consumer protection rules and they will be able to identify whether or not EU consumer law governs a given situation and, if it does, which rules apply, in conjunction with national law.
